ONWARD, by Mayne Reid, keeps its course in the way of producing and publishing articles of high literary merit. For the present month the table of contents is fraught with interest to all classes of readers who like the imaginative coupled with the vigorous. Carleton, publisher, N Y.

THE N Y TEACHER for May is received. Its table of contents present an attraction to literary and scientific readers. J W Schermerhorn & Co., N Y.

THE LITTLE CORPORAL continues to fling out his flag on the outer wall, and war successfully for the right. For May he has the usual budget of choice articles, and his army of Young Americas will rejoice on receiving his visit. A L Sewell, Chicago.

A profuse and many times excessively offensive discharge from the nose, with stopping up of the nose at times, impairment of the sense of smell and taste, watering or weak eyes, impaired hearing, irregular appetite, occasional nausea, pressure and pain over the eyes, and at times in the back of the head, occasional chilly sensations, cold feet, and a feeling of lassitude and debility are symptoms which are common to catarrh, yet all of them are not present in every case. Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures catarrh in its worst forms and stages. It is pleasant to use and contains no poisonous or caustic drugs. Sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents. Address R V Pierce, M D, Buffalo, N Y.
For sale by most druggists everywhere. 2t

The vast amount of Plantation Bitters now being sold and shipped from New York is almost incredible. Go when and where you will—along the wharves and piers, and at the depots—you will see great piles of these bitters awating shipment and conveyance to every nook and corner of the country, and to the hundreds of foreign ports. They are are very popular among all classes of people, and are conceded to be just the thing for this climate. No bitters have yet been introduced which have become so deservedly popular and worthy of patronage, to all who require a tonic and stimulant. They are prepared with pure St Croix Rum, Calisaya and Cascarilla bark, and all the world knows full well what beneficial results accrue from these combinations.

MAGNOLIA WATER.—Superior to the best imported German Cologne, and sold at half the price.—1y274

THE TRUE REMEDY
For all whose surroundings are not favorable to the preservation of health is Mishler's Herb Bitters, which protect the physique against the evil tendency of an imprisoned atmosphere, or any morbid influence productive of disease.

The Riverside for May has a particularly attractive look on account of its number of short, bright articles, and its striking pictures. Nineteen different subjects are treated in the 48 pages, and no one in reading has a chance to get tired of any one article. Fronting the number is an original and powerful picture of a giant, accosted by two travelers, by John LaFarge, and the first story explains the picture. Hans Andersen has some characteristic Sunshine Stories, well fitting the month of May; a pretty picture, by M L Stone, accompanies it. Jacob Abbott explains the philosophy of the Hoop. Annette Bishop gives another of her delicate fairy poems and pictures. The sculptor Kuntze describes how amber is found on the Baltic. Abby Sage tells another story from Chaucer. The Hunting Scenes in Africa, the Rambles about Constantinople, Porte Crayon's Young Virginians, and Mrs Weeks's Adventures among the Indians, are all continued; while sandwitched between the different articles are a number of pretty poems. There is something for everybody it it. Hurd & Houghton, publishers, N Y. $2,50 a year.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—The steel plate for May is an amusing Scene called The first Visit. The colored fashion plate is unusually brilliant, and the leading wood cut represents boating on the beautiful Lake of Killarney. The music is the Melissa Schottische; and a variety of well chosen illustrations present in the most attractive light the present picturesque fashions. The lovers of fancy work will find this department attended to. The table of contents is rich and varied. Published by Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut st. Philadelphia, at $2,50 a year, which also includes a large steel engraving. Four copies, $6. Five copies, and one gratis, $8. The Lady's Friend and the Saturday Evening Post and one engraving, $4.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY.—This magazine has the great merit of keeping up to the times, every year, and almost every number is an improvement on the last. Its varied departments furnish exactly what every lady needs throughout the country, and its immense circulation and great success show that they know it. The prominent features of Patterns, the Ladies Club, the Music, etc., are each one of them worth more than the price of the book, in the real value that they represent to the subscriber. Terms $3 per year with a premium. Address W J Demorest, 838 Broadway.

YOUNG AMERICA.—Of all the juvenile magazines, the children say this is the best, and we must say we agree with them. Its bright colors and its toys have the charm of being different from everything else, while the stories and other sketches are exceptionally good, combining the useful with the amusing in a remarkably successful manner. Terms $1,50 per annum, with a premium. Address W J Demorest 838 Broadway. N Y.

OUR SCHOOLDAY VISITOR.—The charm of this popular magazine consists, in a great measure, in its excellent variety, and the wholesome manner in which it is presented. In almost any number will be found something adapted to the veriest little folks, just lisping their first lessons, on up to the fathers and mothers. In fact we believe that Our Schoolday Visitor is not only a first class boys' and girls' magazine, but a household necessity in every family. The last number which is now before us, more than ever sustains us in this belief. Daughaday & Becker, publishers, 424 Walnut st., Philadelphia, Penn.

PACKARD'S MONTHLY, a live and vigorous visitant for May, comes to us with its cheerful and vivacious pages, filled with many of the best thoughts of our living writers. Poets, philosophers, theologians, moralists & various classes of literary men and women contribute to make this monthly one of the most stirring and vigorous in the country. Designed for young men, it is full of useful reading for them, and the elders will not fail to read the productions it contains.

HARPER FOR MAY.—It is useless for us to attempt to say anything in favor of this well known magazine that the reading public does not already know. It equals the merits of its predecessors, and readers everywhere will go for it.

Some Facts About Rail Roads Interesting to the People.

[From the Medina Gazette.]

EDITOR GAZETTE.—The Atlantic cities ever have been, and probably ever will be, the market, if not the only market for the surplus products of the western and north-western states. That being so, makes a vast amount of busines travel from west to east and east to west indispensably necessary. Add to that the fact that the inhabitants of those states generally were emigrants from the eastern states, leaving behind innumerable unperishing ties of affection; from that cause alone, there will always be an undescribable amount of travel. In addition to all the foregoing, the thousands of millions of dollars of that surplus is annually converted into necessaries, comforts and luxuries, the product of other countries and other climes, and transported into the west and north-west to be consumed. And let it be remembered that all this commerce, this intercourse, overwhelming and inconceivable as it now is, is yet but in its early infancy; that the cost of transportation and travel is computed by the mile, and that the aggregate cost is according to the number of miles travelled or transported.

At present there are three great through thorough fares from the great metropolis on the sea board—besides the lake, and canal, and Baltimore and Ohio R. R. New York Central R. R. and its tributaries; New York and Erie and its feeder A. & G. W. R. R. and the N. J. & Pennsylvania Central and Pittsburg & Chicago R. R. The last three are the ones in which the northwest is specially interested. It may then be a matter of interest to compare them as to distance from New York.

New York to Pittsburg is	431 miles
Pittsburg to Massillon	110—541	"
Massillon to Toledo	134—675	"
Toledo to Chicago	243—918	"

This route would run entirely across the great Apalachian coal field, some two hundred miles. From Massillon to Toledo, 134 miles, there is no railroad. This gap needs to be filled to make this route complete, and when filled by railroad it doubtless will be from five to ten miles shorter than here computed. Or it may be filled by construction of a road from Massillon to Oberlin, or Elyria, or Berea, about fifty miles to each or either place.

From New York west via Erie and A. & G. W.:

New York to Salamanca	415 miles
Salamanca to Mansfield	269—684	"
Mansfield to Chicago	293—977	"
Or from New York to Akron	617	"
Akron to Toledo	120—737	"
Toledo to Chicago	243—980	"

From New York west via Erie and Lake Shore:

New York to Dunkirk	459 miles
Dunkirk to Cleveland	144—603	"
Cleveland to Toledo	112—715	"
Toledo to Chicago	243—958	"

Thus it will be seen that New York is nearer to Chicago via Massillon and Toledo than the New York Central by 64 miles
From Toledo by 64 "
Via Erie and Lake Shore railroad from Chicago N. Y. is nearer by 39 m.
From Toledo 39 "

It will be seen then, that a road from New York to Toledo via Pittsburg and Massillon is nearer by 39 to 64 miles than any other route; also nearer from Chicago by the same distance than any other road except by the Fort Wayne & Chicago. And further, it will tap the largest and best coal field in the world; one that is in no danger of being exhausted in the next ten million years, or in other words, inexhaustable.

To north western Ohio, and to northern Indiana, and southern Michigan, it opens up an exhaustless supply of the best bituminous coal in the world and by many miles the nearer than can be reached anywhere else. To the north-western merchant, it offers a choice of markets, at a diminished expense. To the shipper of western produce, it also offers a choice of markets between Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York, also at diminished cost.

It offers to Pittsburg, and other manufacturing cities on the way, as they are, the facility of selling their wares at home, without the loss on commission and cost of handling several times, waste, breakage, &c. It offers to Philadelphia, a fair field of honorable competition with New York, for all western and north-western trade. It offers to the N. J. & Pa., Central and Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne and Chicago railroad, facilities to increase very largely the transportation and travel on their roads. Finally there is no interest, for near one thousand miles along the line said road, that will not be beneficially affected thereby.

Then, shall this great and needed improvement be constructed?

The Business Man as an Inebriate.

He is of the order of merchants, and his caste-marks are as plain upon him as if he were a Hindoo; what the French call a "man of affairs,"—dealer on an imposing scale, banker or broker speculator, contractor, director of a joint stock company; in other words, that sum of all shrewdness, foresight, sang froid, and self possession, oddly, even contradictorily, combined with the enthusiasm and eagerness which are his esprit du corps,—the American business man, of the most generous type. Among his wares or his books cool and unsympathetic even to hard selfishness, wary and keen, sometimes to unscrupulousness,—among the decanters and cigars he is the freest and heartiest of good fellows, large-hearted, open-handed, robust in his conviviality, and yet never quite losing sight of the main chance,—the inspiring vanity of his conscious smartness steadily holding him in check. In fact it is the ardor of his calling, more than all other causes, which has brought him here. He was born to be sober and self possessed; but in an unguarded hour he invoked the services of the most seductive of salesmen and commissionnaries, Champaigne and Cognac, and they have become the head of the house; and every night when the safe is locked, he hands over to them his prudence and his self-respect.

Even as he enters here, you can perceive that he brings with him the keen weariness of his calling,—that habit of self-indorsement, that assurance of credit at sight, which are the confident credentials of the man who knows a thing or two. Even fresh as he is from a high priced debauch, he recognizes the business part of this little arrangement and goes about settling the preliminaries with the same rigor of system that he would apply to a question of time or discount. With the aspects of philantropy, moral responsibility, animal weakness, and spiritual strength, which present themselves on the surface of the transaction, he does not fash himself. Those may be all very good in their way, but, being sentimental, they are not in his line. Business is business; and this is business. It don't pay to get drunk, even to make a big thing now and then; so he has concluded to resign that department of our operations to heads that have trained for it, and are safe to keep themselves level under any pressure of convivial steam. The influence of this direction of thought and habit of life is apparent in the deliberation with which he has cooled himself off, and shaped himself up, before coming here. His appearance at present is that of a rather florid gentleman of eminent respectability, nice to a fault in his attire, and exact to formality in his propositions. He is especially particular as to terms, accommodations, and privileges, and impress upon us, with an air of polite superiority, that he has nothing to learn on these points. Regarded as a man, everything about him is prepossessing; regarded as a patient, he is interesting and even amusing. The history of his case can be clearly read beforehand; as in certain weak novels, it is easy to guess from the moment the hero is introduced, how the story will end. He will depart gallantly and gayly from the institution, again and again only to return more chopfallen; until at last dead beat by repeated defeats, and warned by the arguments of timidity addressed to him by others,—arguments more wisely grounded than his own,—his irrepressible common sense gets the ascendency, and he acknowledges that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and total abstinence the only stock that pays.—Atlantic Monthly.

Progress of the Suez Canal.

Another step towards the completion of this great enterprise has just been taken. On the 18th ult., the waters of the Mediterranean sea were admitted into the Bitter Lakes with perfect success, in the presence of the Viceroy of Egypt and numerous invited guests. One of the chief mechanical difficulties has thus been surmounted, and there can be little doubt that, in a short time, the canal will be open, at least for vessels of certain tonnage, the entire length from Port Said to Suez. Those who have taken an interest in the canal may remember that in August 1867, an official statement was made of the condition and prospects of the works. The completion of the canal was fixed for the latter part of the present year, 1869. The canal had then attained its full breadth of 100 metres from the Mediterranean to Lake Timsah, and, it was announced, would be at once continued onward to the place called Serapeum, and the Bitter Lakes. This part of the promise has been duly fulfilled, and already, in the spring of 1869, the waters of the Mediterranean are flowing into those lakes, or rather salt marshes, which they will take many weeks to fill. The remainder of the excavation does not present any remarkable difficulty, and we may therefore consider that the work will be completed within a reasonable time and opened for the use of shipping.—Albion.

According to previous announcement, the New Lisbon Railway was offered for sale last Saturday at Warren, by L C Jones, Esq., special master commissioner, and after some spirited biddidg, was sold to Messrs Jay Gould, James Fisk, Jr., C H Andrews, W C Andrews and L D Rucker, for $23,000. We are glad to learn that they propose to immediately commence work upon the unfinished portion of it, and if possible will have it completed by the middle of July. As the heaviest grading between Washingtonville and Niles is already done, the road will no doubt be in full operation by the time mentioned. We congratulate our citizens and the people generally along the line of the road, on the prospect of the completion of this to them important work. It will give a new impetus to the business and material prosperity of our town, and will be the means of securing other outlets for trade and commerce. Already our people are beginning to feel more hopeful for the future, and several new projects are discussed with a seriousness and earnestness that indicates business.—Buckeye.

The Fort Dodge (Iowa) Times says: Rules and regulations being the order of the day, we have to say that smoke-pipes, spit-boxes, and whisky bottles have been banished from the Fort Dodge Times office, and that hereafter we want it distinctly understood that we will employ no help that require any of these. The office is strictly temperance democratic establish RAILROAD MATTERS.—Our readers are referred to an an article on first page taken, from the Medina Gazette, in which is presented several important facts in reference to railroad communication between the northwest and southeast. The route suggested by the writer proves that it is shorter by 34 miles than one of the leading roads, and 60 miles shorter than another prominent thoroughfare. The considerations he presents are worthy the attention of railroad men and capitalists; for not only is the proposed route shorter than existing roads, but it passes through a portion of the country abounding in unlimited resources of mineral wealth. The coal deposits of this vicinity, and onward southeast of us may be set down as inexhaustable, at least, for centuries to come. And the riches in coal is but one item, for to it must be added iron ore, limestone, sandstone and other materials which contribute wealth to individuals, communities, states and nations. And in addition to these resources that of agriculture is one which must not be overlooked. This portion of Ohio has long been tamed as the most favored portion of the wheat belt of this state, for to this fact is Stark county indebted for much of its vast wealth and prosperity. In railroad traveling if a business man finds that he can make an hour by passing over a given route he is sure to avail himself of the advantage it affords—but the suggested route will make from one to three hours between Chicago and New York. For this reason, if for no other, the question is one worthy of serious import. Beside these considerations there is another of vast and weighty importance, and that is, the north-west is becoming more and more dependent upon our coal fields for fuel for manufacturing and many other purposes. This is another stimulus to keep the idea before the people. As soon as capitalists are convinced that it will pay they will be quick to avail themselves of the intrinsic advantages it will confer.

THE MORGAN RAID.—In July 1863, it will be remembered by many, that John Morgan, the renowned rebel raider and horsethief, entered Ohio with his band of marauders, and was successfully sweeping through our territory, doing all the mischief they could, until Sunday the 26th of that month, he and his party were captured in Columbiana county. All through the route which passed much damage was done in the destruction of property and the stealing of everything these prowling thieves could lay their hands upon. When the Ohio legislature convened the following winter claims for damages were preseuted until they amounted to over six hundred thousand dollars. Since that time these claims continue to be presesd, but thus far no relief has awarded the applicants. In a state of war, according to writers on this subject, it is questionable whether the state can be held responsible for losses which follow the wake of contending armies. Senator Potts of this district, a few days ago, delivered an able and conclusive speech against these claims, showing that claimants are not entitled to compensation for losses under such circumstances. It is now almost six years since these depredations were committed, and successive legislatures have thus far refused to respond favorably to the wishes of these petitioners. Our senator did himself great credit for taking the stand he did, and showing so clearly that those who are losers of property under such circumstances are not entitled to remuneration by the state.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, April 16, 1869.

Some of our republican friends of the remote western states and territories, Kansas among them, who have hoped for Indian agencies, have not only been disappointed, but have been given a surprise, at the rush with which the Quakers have taken the places ahead of all competitors. They were the more unprepared for it in that the president was a military man. But sometimes we see "extremes meet" All of the Quaker nominations, two excepted, were confirmed last evening. Zachariah McNaull, nominated agent for the Sacs and Foxes, and Isaac G. Tyson, for the Winnebagoes, were rejected.

Some senators have an almost oppressive notion of their official dignity, it would seem from their remarks in the debate which sprung up on the resolution of Senator Carpenter, requesting the heads of departments to furnish the senate at the first day of the next session, with the names, ages, and compensations of clerks, from where appointed, how long in office, and by whom recommended. Three or four of them who spoke were of the one mind that it was too bad for the senatorial dignity to condescend to recommend a person for a clerical position in one of the departments. Senator Trumbull said: "Senators and Representatives had become mere solicitors for office for their constituents. Time was when they did not hang around anterooms of the secretaries, to procure the appointments of messengers, clerks, and other inferior officers. It was time some notice should be taken of the matter; and he now gave notice that at the next session he would introduce a bill and urge its passage with all the ability he possessed, making it a penal offense for a member of either house to thus become a solicitor about the departments for office."

The deliberate senator from Maine, Fessenden, said: "While he deprecated the signing of papers of applicants for office, he saw no way of avoiding it. * * * It was a melancholy truth that members of congress were mere agents to get office for their constituents in many cases. * * * He had put his name to many papers, and in other cases he had refused to do so He long ago determined that he would never sign the application of a man whose nomination he would have to pass upon as a senator, but he had been obliged to break through that rule also. As the matter now stood, a senator or representative must look out for these offices." &c. Senator Cameron endorsed Senator Trumbull. The president and the secretaries shall come to the senators for information concerning whom to appoint, not the senators go to them.

In the much that these gentlemen said there was not one word indicative of a broad generalizing statesman-like mind on the subject. If persons crowd for clerkships, and press senators and representatives into their service, it is owing to causes underlying both the applicants and them. Yet to those causes they never alluded. Fooling away precious time with the topmost branches of an evil, instead of aiming to get at the root. I was surprised to hear Senator Fessenden and Trumbull's supposed clinching argument against recommending to appointments where they would be called upon to confirm. What becomes of our independence, cries Trumbull, in such a case? Is it possible that these gentlemen are in earnest? Is it not their practice, and the practice in legislative and deliberative assemblies the enlightened world over, for movers of bills and motions to vote on them? Does not the president approve and sign the bill passed by congress which he has recommended in his message? Are these things indelicate or undignified, or improper in any respect?

Again, who are these poor miserable clerks, about whom it is unbecoming to the dignity of senators to interest themselves? Many of them have spent money and time in building up a majority in the legislatures to elevate these same senators to their present places. They are the ladders by which senators have ascended to their airy height. Some are bronchitised clergymen, some are worn-down, ill-paid school masters, and professors; some are officers and privates, whose military occupation is gone since they conquered a peace; some are men of thought and letters, which don't make bread and butter, with little money-getting taste to fit them for independent business. I know a philologist among them for example—though I admit an extreme and rare one—who is philologically acquainted with about 50 languages, and is now engaged on an ethnological work that will cost him years of research and preparation. In a word, I would gladly undertake for a small consideration, to furnish a senate out of the treasury clerks alone, getting from $1,200 to $1,800 a year salary, who, before any competent umpire, in attainments, intellect and character, should compare favorably with the present one. There are numerous young men to be sure, of little account yet. But what were these senators at their age?

The Advance Movement.

The time for the advance movement has arrived. The past few years have witnessed a great increase in the numerical strength of temperance organizations, and renewed attention to facts, arguments and plans, as connected with the temperance cause. There is not a particle of doubt that public sentiment can in due time be brought with us, generally, and that just and efficient laws can be secured, if only the people can be satisfied that these laws will be enforced. The cry, "It's no use of doing anything," which is uttered by many who are despondent friends of temperance, is owing to the fact that people have been waiting for politicians and officers under the law to do what they will not do, until the popular command is made known to them clearly and emphatically. Politicians it has been seen on the other questions, have almost invariably been behind the people, and feared to trust them.

There is no use of longer delay. With a party, though it have but a few members in every locality at the start, who will make this question of temperance, prohibition, and the holding of office by men free from the use of intoxicating drinks a paramount one, progress can be made. We want firm and consistent voters to take this position—those who will stick patiently to the work until their exertions may force politicians to respect their views, and labor for the ends they seek to attain.—Era.

RELATIVE SIZE OF NATIONS.—It is difficult to realize how greatly the general intelligence of the world has been enhanced by the introduction of such books as contain, in concise form, reliable information on subjects of common interest. Were we to be deprived of the cyclopedias and dictionaries of various kinds which form so essential a part of the libraries of all literary men, we would soon learn how important a part they play in carrying on the work of the world. A celebrated judge once said that a lawyer might be called "well read" when he knew where to find his law when needed. Taking this dictum as establishing the correct test, the increase of books of reference is doing much for the cause of popular education. One of the most comprehensive works of this class has just been published by O. D. Case & Company, of Hartford. It is edited by David N. Camp, and is called the American Year Book and National Register for 1869. It is designed to present a general view of the United States, including every department of the national and state governments, together with a brief account of foreign states embracing educational, religious, and and industrial statistics, facts relating to public institutions and societies, miscellaneous essays, important events, obituaries of prominent men who died during the past year, etc. In short it is a complete historical, political, financial, commercial, agricultural, educational, and religious year book, and is designed as the initial volume of a publication to be continued annually. No pains or expense seems to have been spared in the effort to collect full and authentic information in all the departments embraced in the work; and we have, as the result of the combined labors of many eminent writers and statisticians, a fund of facts such as are seldom brought together in one volume.

From the chapter on "Comparative Statistics of the World, relating to Area and Population," we gather the following interesting facts: Asia contains an area of 17,318,000 square miles, and a population of 805,318,808; America an area of 15,480,000 square miles, and a population of 81,400,000; Africa an area of 11,556,663 square miles, and a population of 190,850,809; Europe an area of 3,781,000 square miles, and a population of 292,083,000, and Australasia and Polynesia an area of 3,425,000 square miles, and a population of 4,000,000.

In examining the tables of artificial or political divisions, we find that the Russian Empire stands first in point of territorial extent, it having an area of 7,862,568 square miles, and a population of 77,000,448, which gives 9 9 inhabitants to a square mile. The Chinese empire contains 4,695,334 square miles, with a population of 477,500,000, or 101.6 to a square mile. China (proper,) however, with an area of 1,300,000 square miles, contains 450,000,000 inhabitants, or 346.1 to a square mile, being the most densely populated of all the large countries of the world. The British Empire—exclusive of the Hudson's Bay Territory, which though nominally belonging to Great Britain, is under the control of a private company—contains an area of 4,419,559 square miles, and a population of 174,156,882, which gives a density of 39.4 inhabitants to the square mile. This, however, is very unequally divided, for while British North America, with an area of 3,523,083 square miles, contains a population of but 3,765,000, or about 1 to the square mile, Great Britain proper, with an area of 121,112 square miles contains 29,321,288 inhabitants, or 242.1 to a square mile. The Netherlands exceed this degree of density, having a population of 280.2 to the square mile; and Belgium goes far beyond, having 438.2 to the square mile. Some of the small German states, which are, in fact, only cities, like Hamburg and Bremen, have a population four or five times as dense.

The United States have an area of of 3,573,392 square miles, and a population of 31,560,000, giving a density of 9.7 to a square mile. Of these states, the largest is Texas, with an area of 247,356, a population of 704,215, and a density of 2.4 inhabitants to the square mile. The state having the largest number of inhabitants is New York, with an area of 47,000 square miles a population of 3,880,735, and a density of 82.6. The most densely populated state is Massachusetts, which, with an area of 7,800 square miles, has 1,300,000 inhabitants, or 162.4 to the square mile.

There is probably no reason why the United States may not be capable of supporting as large a population, in proportion to its territorial size, as any nation of the world. We may, by a hasty computations, obtain a rough estimate of our future possibilities. When our entire country shall be as densely populated as Massachusetts is to day, we shall number a population of nearly 1,600,000,000, and when it reaches Great Britain in point of density, our population will number more than 860,000,000.

ATHENS, ATHENS Co., O., August 10, 1859.

DR. C. W. ROBACK,

Dear Sir:—Permit me to say in relation to your Scandinavian Blood Pills and Blood Purifier, that I have used several boxes and bottles, and have found their effects on my system to be all that is claimed for them in your advertisements. I have also seen the effects of your Pills upon a child four or five years old, in expelling worms from the bowels.—One dose given the child, confined to the bed, and apparently very sick, caused the worms to come away from it in great numbers, and they were found crawling and scattered all about. The child thus relieved recovered immediately, and is now well and hearty.

Yours, &c.

"RIVERSIDE"

Lots For Sale.

That beautiful tract of land known as the

FAIR GROUND,

on the bluff west of Massillon, and on the bank of the Tuscarawas river, together with joining lands has just been divided into lots, which are recorded as the Riverside Addition to the town of Massillon.

The lots are of good size and will be sold at such easy terms of payment as to place a home within the reach of all. The beauty of the location is unsurpassed, and we believe it is a conceded fact that a location on the west bank of a running stream of water is always more healthy than one on the east bank.

It is apparent to all that the business and population of Massillon are very rapidly increasing; it is also apparent that public attention is directed to the west side of the river as the most desirable point for a home now in the market or that probably ever will be in the market again. We think therefore that it is safe to predict that in a very few years this grand addition

RIVERSIDE,

Will be covered over with dwelling houses, which will be occupied by a large proportion of the busy citizens of the city of Massillon.

Every man who has a family or ever expects to have one ought to have a home in his own right, then he will be independent, if not rich. A better opportunity will never again be offered of securing one so desirable, so cheap; and so easily paid for

Also a very desirable out lot, of about eight acres, adjoining Massillon on the Canton road, will divide well into three or four pasture lots. Also some beautiful lots in the east part of the city.

The plots may be examined, and lots selected at my store. [292] P. G. ALBRIGHT.

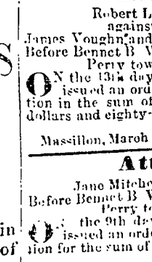
Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For the Renovation of the Hair.

The Great Desideratum of the Age.



A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color and the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts longer on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Mr. Hookway has just opened an immense stock of goods. More about it soon.

Fire.—At the time of the funeral of Mrs Wendling, on Sunday last, the dry leaves, of which there are large quantities in some parts of the cemetery, were discovered to be on fire By timely exertions the flames were soon suppressed, doing little or no damage to the premises, but it might have been otherwise had the mischief not been arrested as it was. Whether the fire was the result of carelessness or design is not known—very possibly from the former cause, as there is an endless amount of smoking done almost everywhere. The wonder is that much more mischief is not done from this abominable and worse than useless practice—a practice of heathen origin, and disgrace to our civilization.

A team ran away, on last Saturday, starting from near the depot and dashing up Mill street at a furious rate. The vehicle suffered in the loss of wheels and other damage. No person was hurt that we hear of. The frequency of such incidents of late should prove a very broad hint to all having the care of horses that they cannot be too particular in watching them.

The base ball fever has not yet opened out here the present season. Perhaps the velocipede has run away with it. One sensation at a time appears to be about as much as any community can entertain. Flags, clubs, balls and the other traps of base ball seem to have given way to or been overrun by the velocipede. There is a time for everything—and one thing at a time.

Alliance Monitor.—We notice that in consequence of the proprietor's health failing, he has offered the Monitor establishment for sale. It is probably one of the best supplied printing offices in this vicinity, as the material and machinery are all new, and of good quality. Mr Garrison states that the business of the office amounts to $20,000 a year. Mrs Brown, who has been the editor for several months, has resigned her position. The fraternity in this region will regret to know this, as her contributions and selections were such as to make the Monitor the best paper in Stark county—and its very neat and well arranged mechanical appearance always commended it to the reader. It will be a good opening for some purchaser.

The Continentals.—The old, original organization under the direction of J W Smith, who organized the troupe in 1853, will give one grand entertainment at Madison Hall, on Friday evening next. Death has made some changes in the troupe, but time has made some improvement. To all those who love that kind of music which elevates the mind above worldly troubles, let them attend the Continentals concert and they will feel that their time and money have been well spent. There is a rare treat in store for all.

Among the up town residences which make a fine and neat appearance, is that recently finished by Mr S Buckius, on Main street. Mr B has long been an active business man at Massillon, and his energy and industry have been rewarded with a competence. Although the years have been leaving their indications upon him, he is now younger than many who have been introduced into the world thirty years this side of his birth.

Boys in Blue.—The publishers of this spirited and well conducted paper, the Ohio organ of our soldier boys, propose to all who subscribe during the next thirty days, to let them have it for one dollar. This should increase their list by hundreds and thousands.

Mr Foster has disposed of the Liverpool Record, and it is now conducted by Mr A J Gibson, who makes an exceedingly lively and sprightly paper of it. East Liverpool is a live town, and the Record is a worthy representative of the place.

Mr O G Madison has just assumed entire control of the American, Mr Zielley having sold to him his interest in the establishment. During the time these gentlemen have had control of this hotel it has prospered, and increased in favor with the traveling public, and it is quite certain that the tide of prosperity will continue under the managment of Mr Madison. Both gentlemen are well qualified to fill the place of landlords, and in consequence of their pleasant and affable manners they have made the American a favorite with their great number of guests. We are not advised of Mr Zielley's intentions, but from his active and go ahead disposition presume he will soon find a business in which he will be prosperous.

J. S. Lockwood & Son have opened an auction and commission room in the building known as the Farmers' and Mechanics Block and Ohio Exchange Co., corner of Erie and Tremont streets. People having property to dispose of at auction will now know where to find a place to store their goods, and a market for their sale.

It is reported that a dog [owner unknown] exhibiting strong signs of hydrophobia, was shot in town, on Monday of this week. Dogs will need looking after if any further indications of madness among them is manifested in this vicinity. That species of population is pretty dense hereabouts.

Last week water was let into the canal, and navigation commenced somewhat lively. Large amounts of freight will now be transferred from and to different points along the entire line.

A J Ricks, Esq., of Knoxville, Tenn., was here on a brief visit to his father, and other relatives, but returned on Monday to his home in the south-west. The premature death of his brother made the visit one of poignant sorrow.

The last few days have been industriously occupied by many of our people in making gardens. The weather, much of the time, has been quite favorable to such exercises.

Quite an exciting cry of fire occurred on Monday evening, which lasted but a few moments. The alarm was given, people ran, the fire machinery was out on the street, but before they arrived at the scene of action the fire was out. A window curtain took fire at the Tremont house, which caused the hubbub.

S Koch & Co., removed their clothing store to their new and elegant room in the north end of the Opera building. Their's was the first store to occupy any part of this new edifice. New stock has just arrived at this establishment, and the proprietors are prepared to supply the demands of all customers with anything in their line.

The Union National Bank has lately been fixing up and refinishing their room, until it now presents a very fine appearance. Very few if any of our business places in town are so elegantly fitted up, and look so attractive as this one.

Mr Sibila has opened a new clothing store in his room, recently occupied by S Koch & Co. His stock will be entirely new.

Death of T. A. Ricks.—Last week in alluding to the critical condition of the subject of this notice, the hope was expressed that his life might be spared, and that once more he might enjoy his wonted health and active usefulness. But that Power which holds the lives of individuals in His hands decreed otherwise, and about noon of last Wednesday, the spirit of our friend and fellow-citizen, left all that was mortal of him, and passed into another mode of existence. When the unwelcome news was first announced our entire community seemed to be wrapped in gloom at the loss which not only his near and dear relatives felt, but which every one seemed to realize as one of the sad days of their experience His illness was not protracted—it was comparatively short, and he lives not to tell us of the nature of the sufferings endured. Mr. Ricks was regarded by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance as a young man of much more than ordinary endowments—he gave evidence of this in many of the relations of life which he felt called upon to occupy. When war for the union was waging, and the existence of our nation was jeopardized by the treason of rebel enemies, although but a youth in his minority, he felt it his duty to volunteer, with many thousands more, and aid in achieving the victory which ultimately crowned our arms in behalf of unity, liberty and equal rights. His service in the army continued three years, and in the varied posts of duty which he was called upon to fill, as a soldier, he did so to the entire satisfaction of all with whom he came in contact. As private citizen he was energetic and enterprising, and had life been spared him, success must have crowned his efforts; as a soldier he was patriotic, and faithful; and as a writer he wielded a facile pen, and leading papers sought his correspondence with more than ordinary avidity. On Friday the remains of Theodore A. Ricks were taken to the cemetery, followed by a vast concourse of citizens, prominent among whom were his comrades in arms of Post 45, who turned out to a man to pay their last respects to the memory of one they all loved and cherished as a comrade. As a token of respect to his memory all the dry goods stores were closed, and comparative quiet marked the hours for funeral ceremonies. Mr. Ricks was aged about 25 years.

TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF
THEODORE A. RICKS.

Like a smitten pine, graceful and green,
And fresh with manhood's early bloom,
He fell:—and he, who yesterday,
Stood joyous, and a joy to all,
Lies prostrate now in death.
The home his presence filled with bliss,
Is dark with gloom: sadness and tears
Are on each anxious face, that late
So gladly basked within the beams,
His radiant smiles around him shed.
Not as the aged oak, that sinks,
With gradual and sure decay.
But swift in manhood's early prime,
He bowed, e'en like the budding tree,
As when with unrelenting stroke
The axman lays his sharpened blade.

O, cruel fate! that one so young.—
So full of promise, and of hope.—
So graced with budding usefulness,
Should perish thus, e'en while the dew
That decks life's golden morn, is fresh,
And radiant in the rising sun.
But like the dew, he paled and passed,
Ere yet his life had reached its noon.

Farewell! thy comrades mourn thy loss,
Who, on the red and tented field,
Stood fearless by thy side, and braved,
With thee, the front and shock of war,
When vaunting treason, madly hurled
Its bolts, against the nation's life.
Upon the tented fields above,
Thy banner waves victorious now.
Resplendant round its golden staff,
Departed heroes, rallying, throng
To grasp thy hand, and welcome bid
To the grand army of the sky.
Now, with thy comrades gone, who on
The battle cloud to victory rose,
In heavenly chorus joined, goes up
The loud and ceaseless banner song
Of Freedom evermore!

Tis past!
Earth's battles, all, are ended now;
But through the unfolding clouds above,
That vail our vision from the world
Beyond, canst thou not drop some smile,
To cheer our faint and faltering steps,
While yet in our unfinished fight
We struggle on? Canst thou not lend
Some ray, to light the cheerless path
Of her, who, like the ivy on
The oak, did'st lean on thee, till thou
Wert most untimely stricken down?
O, say! from thine unseen abode,
Canst thou not whisper back some word
Of love? some consolation sweet?
That in her loneliness shall soothe
The throbbing heart with the sweet sense,
That, though unseen, thou still art near,
And loving still, with purer love,
Than we, on earth, can ever know?
Come, then, and from the airy realm
That bounds our clouded sphere, speak words
Of hope to those who mourn thy loss,
And give assurance, glad and strong,
To cheer our dark and shadowy vale
Through death's mysterious vale, to where
Thy footsteps tread the shining paths.
Which, o'er the glittering fields of light,
Lead gently on to heaven, and God.

Massillon, April 24, 1869. A. F.

Fish.—Our citizens are supplied almost every day with an abundance of fresh fish, just brought from the lake. Mr Beatty must have had nearly a quarter of a cord one day last week—many of them fine big fish—but in a short time the pile melted away like snow in a spring sun.

A deserved tribute to tn the memory of the late T A Ricks appears in today's paper, furnished by one of our citizens who was well acquainted with him, and by whom he was held in high esteem.

Storms.—During the last ten days the daily papers have been giving numerous accounts of unusual floods and tornadoes both east and west of us. Great losses have been sustained by railroads, towns cities, and other classes of property in consequence of the floods of water. In some places severe hail-storms and tornadoes did vast damage. St Louis suffered from hail and a hurricane, it is reported, to the amount of $20,000 in the loss of glass alone. During that time the weather has been rather mild and pleasant here with occasional thunder showers.

Now is the time to get your nice suits of clothing, at the Philadelphia clothing store, on Main street. BLANK LEASES FOR SALE.

Married.—April 25th, by Rev J C Lee, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr Harmon D Garver, and Miss Irene Steelsmith. The fomer of Navarre and the latter of Rochester,

Died

In the city of New York, on the 16th inst, of cancer, Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Kelley, of this city, widow of the late judge James S Kelley, in the 53d year of her age.

The bare announcement of the death of one who for near thirty years past bore so prominent a part in the social history of Massillon, will not suffice among those who shared the acquaintance and friendships of Mrs Kelley. Among those swept away by the mortality now prevailing in this city, no one has left a greater void in the social and domestic circles of which she was a distinguished ornament.

Miss Anna Elizabeth Van Stavoren was a native of Philadelphia, was born March 5th, 1817, and while temporarily residing in East Union, Wayne County, Ohio; was married to the late Hon James S Kelley, Oct. 13th, 1840. Judge Kelley, then residing in this city, she became a resident here also, and remained until her decease at the date above mentioned. Immediately upon her coming here to reside her influence as a representative woman was felt, which increased with her means of doing good as long as she lived.

For several years immediately preceding her death, she suffered extremely, and bore her sufferings with more than heroic fortitude, and a degree of patience rarely witnessed. Her life was a beautiful example of unfaltering trust in Him who doeth all things well, and by that trust in her terrible afflictions—among which was the loss of a devoted husband within a year last past—she was sustained and soothed and enabled to approach her grave,

Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch About him and lies down to pleasant dreams.

Mrs. Kelley died in the faith of the Protestant Episcopal church, a membership in which she had graced for many years, and where she will be greatly missed as well as in the domestic circle, where her precepts and examples were of a character to produce mos. happy results. She leaves six children and one grand child to mourn a loss never to be replaced, and for whom the sympathy of a large circle of acquaintances and friends is deeply felt. The death of her excellent husband in June last, was a shock from which she never recovered, although surrounded with a family to whom she was much attached, and was in the enjoyment of all other comforts of a temporal character that a competence could furnish. She felt on leaving them that she was ready, and could say with the Psalmist, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." Com.

HEMBOLD'S.
Concentrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla

ERADICATES ERUPTIVE and ULCERATIVE DISEASES OF THE

THROAT, NOSE, EYES, EYELIDS, SCALP, and SKIN,

Which so disfigure the appearance, PURGING the evil effects of mercury and removing all taints the remnants of diseases hereditary or otherwise and is taken by adults and children with perfect SAFETY.

TWO TABLE-SPOONFULS of the extract o Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Liquor Dict Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

AN INTERESTING LETTER is published in the Medico-Chirurgical Review, on the subject of the Extract of Sarsaparilla in certain affections by Benjamin Travers, F. R. S., &c. Speaking of those diseases, and diseases arising from the excess of mercury, he states that no remedy is equal to the Extract of Sarsaparilla; its power is extraordinary, more so than any other drug I am acquainted with. It is, in the strictest sense a tonic with this remarkable attribute, that it is applicable to a state of the system so sunken and yet so irritable as renders other substances of the tonic class unavailable or injurious.

HEMBOLD'S
Concentrated Fluid Sarsaparilla.

Established upwards of 18 years. PREPARED BY H. T. HEMBOLD,
2 m. 594 Broadway, N. Y.

Do not Trifle With Danger.

A single spark may kindle a flame that will consume a city, and small ailments, neglected, may end in fatal disorders. Bearing this fact in mind let the first symptoms of debility or nervous prostration be met promptly by invigorating treatment. Foremost among the vegetable tonics of the age stands HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, and whenever the vital powers seem to languish, or there is any reason to suspect that the animal functions essential to the nutrition and purification of the body are imperfectly performed, this invaluable invigorant and antiseptic should at once be resorted to. Indigestion always produces weakness of the bodily powers. Sometimes it happens that the appetite demands more food than the stomach can digest: though not more, perhaps, than is required to keep up the full strength of the frame. The object, under such circumstances, is to increase the digestive capacity of the assimilating organ, so as to make it equal to the duty imposed upon it by the appetite, and capable of supplying the building material of the system as fast as it is required. This object is fully accomplished by the use of the bitters. They tone and gently stimulate the cellular membrane which secretes the gastric juice, and the result is that the solvent is mixed with the food in sufficient quantity to convert all its nourishing parts into pure and wholesome chyme. If, on the other hand, there is a deficiency of appetite, without any corresponding debility of digestive power, the effect of the tonic is to stimulate a desire for food In nineteen cases out of twenty headache, nausea, nervousness, faintness, spasms, and indeed, most of the casual aches and pains to which humanity is subject, proceed primarily from indigestion complicated with biliousness; and for both these complaints HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are recommended as a speedy and certain remedy. 301-4t

A CLEAR, SMOOTH SKIN and BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION follows the use of Hembold's Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla.

It removes Dark spots, pimples and all eruptions of the skin. 2m

IN THE SPRING MONTHS, the system naturally undergoes a change, and HEMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENTRATED EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA is an assistant of the greatest value 2m

YOU ALL
HAVE HEARD OF
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,
AND
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,

Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, Philadelphia. Their introduction into this country from Germany occurred in 1825.

THEY CURED YOUR

FATHERS AND MOTHERS,

And will cure you and your children. They are entirely different preparations now called Bitters or Tonics. They are no tavern drink; but good, honest, reliable medicines. They are from the many in the country Tonics. They are ration, or anything like one; but good, honest, reliable medicines. They are

The greatest known remedies for

Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA,
Nervous Debility,
JAUNDICE,
Diseases of the Kidneys,
ERUPTIONS OF THE SKIN,
and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD.

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and Great Depression of Spirits.

All these indicate disease of the Liver or Digestive Organs, combined with impure blood.

Hoofland's German Bitters

is entirely vegetable, and contains no liquor. It is a compound of Fluid Extracts. The Roots, Herbs, and Barks from which these extracts are made are gathered in Germany. All the medicinal virtues are extracted from them by a scientific chemist. These extracts are then forwarded to this country to be used expressly for the manufacture of these Bitters. There is no alcoholic substance of any kind used in compounding the Bitters, hence it is the only Bitters that can be used in cases where alcoholic stimulants are not advisable.

Hoofland's German Tonic

is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with PURE Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc. It is used for the same diseases as the Bitters, in cases where some pure alcoholic stimulus is required. You will bear in mind that these remedies are entirely different from any others advertised for the cure of the diseases named, these being scientific preparations of medicinal extracts, while the others are mere decoctions of rum in some form. The TONIC is decidedly one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public. Its taste is exquisite. It is a pleasure to take it, while its life-giving, exhilarating, and medicinal qualities have caused it to be known as the greatest of all tonics.

DEBILITY.

There is no medicine equal to Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic in cases of Debility. They impart a tone and vigor to the whole system, strengthen the appetite, cause an enjoyment of the food, enable the stomach to digest it, purify the blood, give a good, sound, healthy complexion, eradicate the yellow tinge from the eye, impart a bloom to the cheeks, and change the patient from a short-breathed, emaciated, weak, and nervous invalid, to a full-faced, stout, and vigorous person.

Weak and Delicate Children are made strong by using the Bitters or Tonic. In fact, they are Family Medicines. They can be administered with perfect safety to a child three months old, the most delicate female, or a man of ninety.

These Remedies are the best

Blood Purifiers

ever known, and will cure all diseases resulting from bad blood. Keep your blood pure; keep your digestive organs in a sound, healthy condition, by the use of these remedies and no disease will ever assail you. The best means of recommendation they. If years of honest reputation go for anything you must try these preparations.

FROM HON. GEO. W. WOODWARD,

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is not an intoxicating beverage, but is a good tonic, useful in disorders of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action, in the system.

Yours truly, GEO. W. WOODWARD.

FROM HON. JAMES THOMPSON,

Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, April 28, 1868.

I consider "Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours, with respect, JAMES THOMPSON.

FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D. D.,

Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir:—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart from my usual course, to express my full conviction that for general debility of the system and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates street.

CAUTION.

Hoofland's German Remedies are counterfeited. The genuine have the signature of C. M. Jackson on the front of the outside wrapper of each bottle, and the name of the article blown in each bottle. All others are counterfeit.

Price of the Tonic, $1 50 per bottle; Or, a half dozen for $7 50.

The tonic is put up in quart bottles.

Recollect that it is Dr. Hoofland's German Remedies that are so universally used and so highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggists to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by express to any locality upon application to the

The Song of The Anvil.

BY N G SHEPHERD.

Within the village smithy
Right merrily I ring,
And under the stroke of the hammer
A tuneful song I sing.

Red glows the wide-mouthed furnace,
The heaving bellows roar—
You can hear their huge lungs panting
Outside the open door.

The smith is stalwart and mighty—
He lifts his sledge on high.
Then lets it fall on the iron,
And the sparks all round him fly.

With ready voice I answer,
And cheer him with my song;
I sing to him while he labors—
I sing to him all day long.

His arm is brawny and powerful,
His strength full well I know:
He strikes with an earnest purpose,
And heavily falls his blow.

The children stand in the doorway,
For they love to see him swing
His sledge across his shoulder,
While cheerily I sing.

My voice goes out to the village;
You can hear it far away,
As I cheer the smith in his labor
Through all the live long day.

With every blow from his hammer
An unswering note I sound,
That over again is repeated
Wherever an echo is found.

Oh, ye who are sorely smitten
By the iron hand of fate,
Abide your time in patience,
Ye have not long to wait.

Oh, young man, eager and hopeful,
Oh, young man valiant and strong,
When the blows fall fast and thickest
Make answer with a song!

Biles.

BY JOSH BILLINGS.

I can tork like a poet about biles just now for i have one in full bloom growing on me, almost reddy to pick, az big az an egg plant, and az full of anguish az a broken heart.

Biles are the sorest things of their size on reckord, and az kross to the touch az a settin hen, or a dog with a fresh bone. Biles always pick out the handyest place on youre boddy tew build their nest, and if you undertake to brake them up, it only makes them mad, and takes them longer to hatch out. There aint no such thing as coaxing, nor driving them away. They are like an impudent bed bug, they won't move till they heve got their fill.

Biles are az old az religion. Job, the proffit, waz the fust champion ov biles, and he iz currently reported tew have more biles, and more pashunce, to the square inch, than any one, two very rare things to be found in enny man.

Biles and pashunce! i shud az soon think of mixing courting and muskeeters together, for luxury.

I have got a great deal more faith than i have pashunce, but i aint got enough faith in biles, i wouldn't trust a bile, even on one of my boots.

I think faith is a better artickle than pashunce. Faith sumtimes iz an evidence of brains, and pashunce quite often iz only numbness, but i dont think in these smooth shod times, it iz best to hav too much capital invested in either of them.

But i am out of the road i must git onto biles again.

If a fellow begins to wander, and git out of the straight and narrow path, it is curious how quick he will begin to go to the ——. Biles are very sassy; sumtimes when you go to set down, they will get between you and the chair; this iz one evidence of their ill-breeding; and i had one once plant herself on the front end of mi nose, which was a most remarkable piece of bad manners, for there iz no room on mi noze ennywhare for a bile, for when it iz even ebb tide with mi noze, it covers half of mi face. Biles are sed to be healthy, and i guess they am, for i hev seen some healthy old biles, az big az a hornet's nest and az full of stings. I always want to be healthy—i am willing to pay the highest market price for a good deal of healthy—but ef i had to hev 2 biles on me awl the time, in order to be healthy, i should think that i wuz bulling the market.

There iz one more smart thing about biles; they are like twins; they hardly ever cum singly, and i hav known 'em to throw double sixes.

What! twelve biles on one man at a time! This is wuss than fighting bumble bees with your summer clothes on. Biles are sed, by the educated and correct spellers of the land, to be an operashun of natur to get rid of sumthing wich she has to spare. This is so without doubt, but it dont strike me az being a very polite thing in natur tew shove oph her biles onto other folks. I say, let everybody take care of their own biles.

But say all yer kan about biles, call them all the mean names current among fishmongers, revile, and prosecute, and spit on them, groan, grin and swear when they visit yer, hit them over the head and set on them if yer please, there iz a time in their career when they concentrate aul the pathos of joy that a man has on hand to spare, and that iz—when they bust!

This is bliss, glory, and revenge on the haff-shell. A man leans back in rektified comfort, az innocent and az limber az a mermaid. This pays for the fretful nights and nervous days while the bile has been hatching; this shows us what it is to grin and bear it—this shows what it iz to be biled, and wrung out, and hung up to dry. This iz the calm after a storm, the wedding day of pashunce, and joy; this iz the christening of hope, the mystick hen that lays 2 eggs a day: this iz butter on yure sassigis.

Exit Biles.

Harp of a Thousand Strings-Spirits of Just Men made Perfect.

The older readers of newspapers will remember the following burlesque of the style of preaching in vogue at the Southwest, which was first published about twenty years since, when it had a very extensive circulation. Having lost none of the original point and juciness, it will now be equally enjoyed by the younger class of readers. It will be understood that the place where this sermon was delivered was a landing on the Mississippi River, and that the preacher was on his way with his flat boat to New Orleans:

I may say to you my brethering, that I am not an edicated man, an' I am not one of them as believes that edication is necessary for a good gospel minister, for I believe the Lord edicates his preachers just as he wants 'em to be edicated; an' although I say it that oughtn't to say it, yet in the state of Indiannу, whar I live, thar's no man as gets bigger congregations nor what I gets.

Thar may be some here to day, my brethering, as don't know to what persuasion I belongs. Well, I must say to you, my brethering, that I'm a hard shell Baptist. Thar's sum folks as don't like the Hard Shell Baptists, but I'd rather have a hard shell as no shell at all. You see me here to day, my brethering, dressed up in fine clothes; you mout think I was proud, but I am not proud my brethering, and although I've been a preacher of the gospel for twenty years, an' although I'm captain of the flat boat that lies at your landing, I'm not proud, my brethering.

I am not going to tell edzactly whar my tex may be found, suffice to say, it's somewhar between the leds of the Bible, and you'll find it somewhar between the first chapter of the book of Genrations and the last chapter of the book of Revolutions, and ef you'll go and search the scripters you'll not only find my tex thar, but great many other texes as will do you good to read, and my tex, wen you shall find it, you shall find it to read thus:

"And he played on a harp of a thousand strings—sperits uv just men made perfect."

My text, my brethring, leads me to speak of sperits. Now, thar's a great many kinds of speerits in the world—in the fuss place, thar's the sperits as some folks call ghosts, and thar's the spirits uv turpentine, and thar's the spirits as some folks call liquor, and I've got as good an artikel of them kind as was ever fotched down the Mississippi river; but thar's a great many other kind of sperits, for the tex says, He played on a harp of a t-h-o-u-sand strings. sperits uv jest men made perfeck.

But I'll tell you the kind uv sperits as ment in the tex is fire. That't the kind of sperits as is meant in the tex, brethering. Now thar's a great many kinds of fire in the world. In the fuss place there's the common sort of fire you light your pipe with, and then thar's fox fire and camfire, and fire before you're ready, and fire and fall back, and many other kinds of fire, for the tex says, He played on a harp of a thousand strings, sperits of jest men made perfeck.

But I'll tell you the kind of fire as is meant in the tex my brethering—it's hell fire! and that's the kind uv fire as a great many uv you'll come to, ef you don't do better nor what you've been doin—for He played on a harp of a thousand, strings sperits of uv jest men perfeck.

Now the different sorts of fire in the world may be likened onto the different persuasions of Christians in the world. In the fuss place we have the Piscopalians, and they are a highfalutin' set, and they may be likened unto a turkey buzzard, that flies up into the air, and he goes up, and up, and up, till he looks no bigger than your finger nail, and the fust thing you know, he comes down, and down, and is fillin' himself on the carkiss of a dead hoss by the side of the road, and He played on a harp uv a thousand strings. sperits uv jest men made perfeck.

And then thar's the Methodis, and they may be likened onto the squirrill runnin' up into a tree, for the Methodis beleeves in gwine on from one degree of grace to another, and finally on to perfection, and the squirrel goes up, and up, and he jumps from limb to limb, and branch to branch, and the fust thing you know he falls, and down he comes kerflumix, and that's like the Methodis, for they is allers fallin from grace, ah! and He played on a harp uv a thousand strings, sperits uv jest men made perfeck.

And then, my brethering, thar's the Baptist, ah! and they have been likened unto a possum on a 'simmon tree, and thunders may roll and the earth may quake, but that possum clings there still, ah! and you may shake one foot loose, and the other's thar, and you may shake all feet loose, and he laps his tail around the limb, and clings and he clings forever, for He played on the harp uv a thousand strings, sperits uv jest men made perfeck.

My son hold up your head and tell me who was the strongest man?

Jonah.

Why so?

Cause the whale couldn't hold him, after he got him down.

A chap from the country, stopping at one of the hotels, sat down to dinner. Upon the bill of fare being handed to him by the waiter, he remarked that he didn't care 'bout reading now—he'd wait till after dinner.
